Life and death may seem remote for many of us, but not for General Sir Richard Dannatt. For over three decades, he has faced life and death issues every day, both personally and on behalf of other people in war zones around the world. He retired as Chief of the General Staff in the British Army in August 2009.

As a Christian in the military, how does his faith in Christ impact his decisions, his life and his career? How did he see God in the midst of the fighting? Come and join us for breakfast with General Dannatt. There will also be an opportunity for Questions & Answers.
